LAST RITES

Parnell's Ashes Interred in Irish Soil.

The Highest Honors Paid to the Dead Leader's Remains.

An Immense Procession Escorts the Coffin to the Grave.

The Closing Services in the Cemetery Marred by Disgraceful Scenes of Disorder Among the Vast Throng of Mourners.

By Telegraph to The Times.

DUBLIN, Oct. 11.—[By Cable and Associated Press.] The remains of Charles Stewart Parnell arrived at Kingstown this morning. After leaving London there were no demonstrations along the route until Chester was reached. There large delegations from Liverpool, Manchester, Preston, Newcastle-on-Tyne and other places joined the train. Mr. Parnell's colleagues in Parliament extended greetings to the various delegations.

The funeral train reached Holyhead about 2 o'clock. It was a typical British October morning—dark, dismal, wet, cold, hazy. Notwithstanding the unfavorable surroundings, large groups of people had collected on the quay to watch the transfer of the coffin from the train to the mail boat. The case in which the coffin had been placed was borne upon the shoulders of seamen to the steamer. The Parnellites followed next behind. Sobs were distinctly audible as the procession filed down the double gangway to the ship. The coffin was deposited in an inclosure specially fitted up for its reception, and here the faithful followers of the deceased kept watch throughout the voyage across the channel, relieving one another at regularly stated intervals.

Among those who kept guard were the Lord Mayor of Dublin, High Sheriff Meade, and Mr. Parnell, brother of the deceased. The journey across was eventless, the boat making the passage in a gale of wind and through torrents of rain.

ARRIVAL ON IRISH SOIL.

At Kingstown a crowd had collected to receive the remains on Irish soil. Conspicuous among those present were the followers of Mr. Parnell: Richard Power, Joseph E. Kenny, T. Lawrence Carew, James J. Dalton, T. Rochford Maguire, John J. Clancy, William J. Cobet, Col. John P. Nolan, Patrick O'Brien, together with the members of the House of Commons, who followed the body from London, and the Kingstown delegation comprised nearly all the Parliamentary adherents of Mr. Parnell. All gathered around the coffin in absolute silence, which was unbroken even by the exchange of friendly greetings until after the transfer of the body to the railway carriage. The short distance was soon made, the train arriving at Dublin station at 7:30 o'clock.

A vast silent crowd with uncovered heads, awaited the train as it rolled into the station. Timothy Harrington, member of Parliament for Dublin harbor, and Dr. Hackett, who attended Parnell when his eyes were injured in Kilkenny, as well as other notabilities, here joined the swelling general procession. Conspicuous in front of the dense mass of people were members of the Gaelic Athletic Association, with the hurlers dressed in their sports, all draped with black crepe caught up with green ribbons. Representatives of different branches of the League wore black badges upon which were printed the dying words of the statesman: "Give my love to my colleagues and the Irish nation." On being removed from the train the coffin was lifted into a hearse. Floral tributes literally covered the top of the hearse, and were piled around the coffin. These, after they had been put aside, were eagerly seized upon by the crowd, broken into small pieces and kept as mementos of the sad occasion. As the hearse moved from the station the body of police formed the front of the procession. The band of the Workmen's Union followed directly behind the police, and played the dead march in Saint. Then came the Gaelic Athletic Association, with the hurlers reversed, resembling a military body with reversed arms. As the march progressed, the crowd grew.

THE LAST RITES.

At the grave Rev. Mr. Vincent of the Rotunda Chapel and Rev. George Fry of Manchester officiated. They were obliged to cut the services short as the crowd grew into the protecting circle and overwhelmed the inner group. Sometimes after, in dead darkness, when the crowd had thinned away, the more intimate friends again grouped themselves around the grave, deposited wreaths thereon and took a last view of the coffin. The grave became heaped up with masses of floral tributes, including one from Miss O'Shea.

Apart from the disorder at the cemetery the day was without accident. Probably never was a greater popular demonstration attended by so little excitement. Most of the public houses remained closed throughout the day out of respect to the dead. The police unfailingly obtrusive in Irish public gatherings were today conspicuously absent. Tonight Sunday, quietness prevailed.

A PARCELLE MANIFESTO.

BURNED TO DEATH.

Children Upset a Lamp and One of Them Loses Her Life.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 14.—[By the Associated Press.] Fire tonight resulted in the death of Gracie Wilson, a Mexican girl, aged 4 years. Mrs. Fernandez, her mother, left her three youngest children in the upper room of a house on fire of their half-sister, Mercy Fernandez. Mercy, locked in a room and went out to play. The imprisoned youngsters upset a coal oil lamp and started a fire. Two were rescued, but Gracie could not be reached. Two men living in the house were almost suffocated, and were dragged into the street unconscious.

ATE A POISONED TOMATO.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 11.—Little Stella Page, aged 2, living in part of town known as the Potrero, was tonight poisonized by eating a tomato she found in the street. Some unknown person had recently planted a tomato plant near the entrance of the house. Stella also ate the tomato and died.

AT THE CHURCHES.

Dr. Chichester on Confession of Faith Revision.

Rev. Mr. Heisler Sufficiently Recovered to Resume His Duties.

Interesting Talk on Mission Work by Rev. Mr. Stewart.

Rev. Mr. Smither at the Temple-street Christian Church—Y. M. C. A. Services—"Rally Day" in East Los Angeles.

Rev. Dr. Chichester preached a powerful sermon yesterday morning concerning the "Revision of the Presbyterian Confession of Faith." His text consisted of three little words from the first chapter of the second Epistle of Peter, "The present truth." The Doctor held that the "present truth" here means the truth suited to present circumstances and present needs.

Many a gospel message, good enough in itself, entirely miscarries because it lacks the quality of timeliness. Richard Baxter used to say that a preacher of the everlasting gospel should preach as a dying man to dying men. The Doctor's idea, however, was that he should preach as a living man to living men—the living truth concerning the living question being, above all things else, the truth that now needs to be brought in contact with living souls. Each age and each generation has its issues on the front to which the old truths must be adapted, and out of the complicated character of our advanced civilization, questions are now arising which were utterly unknown when Calvin wrote his "Institutes," or when the Westminster divines framed the Confession. And this is very largely the explanation of this revision movement that is now sweeping through the Presbyterian Church, viz.: the growing conviction that the Westminster Confession does not adequately express the church's "present truth"—the truth as it is now held and preached by the great body of her ministry and membership.

"It is safe to say," said the Doctor, "that at the present moment Presbyterians are divided into three distinct classes concerning this revision movement. First, there is a small fraction of extremely radical people, who make wild and extravagant statements and will and extravagant demands. Such persons are generally without any Presbyterian instincts or antecedents and if possible would blot out every iota of Calvinism from the Confession. Then there is a small fraction of extremely conservative Presbyterians like the old ones in the Detroit Assembly, who insisted that he would not alter the Confession by dotting an I or crossing a T. Midway between these two extremes, however, is a third class of Presbyterians comprising the great body of the church's ministry and membership—fully conscious of those who insist that some revision of the Confession is necessary, imperative and inevitable. And while this third party is thoroughly and loyally Calvinistic, maintaining that it is God and not man who determines who shall be saved—it also maintains that modern scripture exegesis has greatly modified some of the Confession's statements. The church's "present truth" is very largely a matter of proper emphasis and when the Confession was framed more emphasis had to be placed on certain doctrines than this present age calls for.

The errors that then menaced the church demanded that great prominence should be given to such truths as God's absolute sovereignty and His inflexible justice. And the system was based along these lines was a tremendous weapon against kings that had usurped divine rights and against a church that was assuming divine prerogatives. In our nineteenth century, however, that which once gave strength to the Confession now becomes an element of weakness; so that it may be justly charged, as Dr. Patten says, "with infelicities of expression, excesses of statement and faults of emphasis." Said a Philadelphia lawyer the other day, "Its writer has rather overloaded Adam." The unbalanced emphasis of the Confession is sometimes very startling—quoting as it does in the protest texts—"Evan have I hated," "I do so love the world," but once. The Doctor said that it was only fair to state that while an overwhelming majority of Presbyterians thus desire revision there are two distinct opinions on the subject in the church. The first opinion is that the doctrine of election should be left in the Confession—not only within its scriptural limitations—but with all its logical inferences. The second view holds, however, that while election should certainly remain as a distinct biblical truth—the logical inference from it being purely human and extra scriptural—should all be stricken out. The Doctor said he personally held this second view, along with such men as Van Dyke, Herrick Johnson, Charles L. Thompson and his honored teacher, A. A. Hodges, who said in his Philadelphia lecture, "The need of the hour is not to emphasize foreordination, but to unite with our Arminian brethren in putting all emphasis on the vital fact of human freedom."

The Doctor, then, spoke at length of several important points of revision that are called for by the church's "present truth." He insisted that the church demanded a revision that will entirely free the Confession from the doctrine of reprobation and from the doctrine of infant damnation. Another doctrine that needs to be dropped is the indiscriminate damnation of all the unevangelized heathen—together with their Confession's offensive and belligerent attitude concerning the Roman Catholic Church. Then last evening the Doctor insisted that above and beyond everything else the Confession must contain more broad and emphatic statements concerning the mercy of God. It was this last point that Rev. Dr. Stewart plead so eloquently at the recent presbytery meeting—saying "of all churches in the world our Presbyterian Church can afford to do this. We are not liable to be misunderstood." Strange to say, however, there are other men who are much more timid and conservative—one of whom recently said he believed in putting more of the mercy of God in the Confession, "provided the statement of it be sufficiently guarded."

It is simply impossible for a reporter to do justice to such a sermon. Never, perhaps, in his life before was Dr. Chichester more at a loss for words when he thus plead for the dropping of these doctrinal extravagances—which in no sense necessary to the integrity of the Calvinistic system. The congregation were spell-bound during the entire sermon, and many expressed a desire to see it in print.

FIRST ENGLISH LUTHERAN CHURCH.
Rev. C. W. Heisler, after a nine months' vacation, has sufficiently recovered his health to resume his pastorate of the First English Lutheran Church, corner Eighth and Flower streets, and recommenced his labors there the 1st of October. Yesterday morning he received three new members into the church and administered the rite of confirmation to two others.

Mr. Heisler is one of the most brilliant young ministers in the city. His text yesterday was from Acts xxvii, 23. He gave first a vivid word picture of the thrilling scene on board the Egyptian merchant ship, tossing on the tempestuous waves of the Mediterranean, on whose deck stood Paul the apostle—the only calm and fearless passenger in the crew of 200. As the little ship sailed before the gales, the wind beyond the control of the sailors, her timbers straining as she rolls and lurches on the surging billows, Paul reveals his vision to the terrified passengers and acknowledging God's ownership, exclaims in the language of the text: "Whose I am and whom I serve." The language of this passage of scripture implies, first, God's ownership of us, and second, our service to God. Taking these two thoughts as the central point he developed his theme in a clear-cut, convincing manner. Communion is a seal on the bond of ownership in the chain which links us to Christ and Him to God the Father. The communion service followed the "A Friend."

Last evening Mr. Heisler began a series of services on the Old Testament prophets, commencing with "Lot's Choice." Next Sunday evening his topic will be "Ruth's Choice."

The Christian Endeavor Society of this church will give a conversation social tomorrow evening in the church chapel.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Rev. Dr. Stewart preached a very interesting sermon to a large and attentive audience yesterday morning at the First Presbyterian Church, his text being Matthew vi, 33. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and His righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you."

Dr. Stewart in his original manner, with a style of moulding thoughts and producing ideas, handled this text with direct special bearing upon the missionary cause. He said that naturally man did not want to be civilized, that he was prone to follow darkness rather than light, and after being partially civilized, then neglect for a while, would fall back into barbarism. Therefore the improvements toward civilization would have to be slow, long continued and laborious. Letting in the dawn of God's kingdom first, spreading the gospel abroad, and man's kingdom growing and building up trade and government relations afterwards.

Christianize the heathen first, and civilization will follow. Religion is the deepest thing, the great ruling power. With it the home is made sacred, the heart is touched. It must begin with Bibles; it cannot be accomplished with Government bonds, trade relations, nor brass button missionaries.

In trying to reach them by trade, we have brought to our own country the ghastly effects of opium smoking, gambling and other vices. Silence will never civilize; it takes a Christian atmosphere, which apparently has an effect, even over dumb brutes.

Darwin and Huxley, with their theories of evolution, will never civilize. But man will not fold his arms and say, Let cannibalism go on, but it is making a brave effort to save them, and it is a universal law that "God helps those who help themselves." God's children seldom come to want. "Take no thought for the morrow, but seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all other things shall be added unto you."

TEMPLE-STREET CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

Rev. A. C. Smither preached to a large congregation at the Temple-street Christian Church yesterday morning from the third chapter of Titus, fourth to eighth verses. The salvation of man is the one great central thought in the Bible around which all other thoughts revolve. Christ is the central figure of that thought and of Him, His character and life, sing all the singers and prophesy all the prophets of the Bible. There are four ideas constituting the great corner-stones of Christianity, or means by which God deals with man—kindness, love, mercy, grace—upon these four ideas the whole structure of Christianity rests.

Rev. Dr. A. Blum preached last evening on "Thoughts on Immortality," to a large congregation, the Synagogue being filled.

There is a difference; with some baking powders, breads and cakes are coarse grained, as if the sugar was too coarse. With Cleveland's they are fine grained and spongy; with others, cake gets husky and crumbly, dries out; with Cleveland's it keeps moist and fresh. Try a can. Cleveland's!

WATER! WATER!

Is the great need in Southern California.

Gov. Stoneman Home Tract

Has not only an abundance but the property on the market for sale has its full quota set aside and run into a separate reservoir for this tract only. No shotgun brigade required to protect the buyers' interests in the water they purchase with the land. The owners of the tract have the right to control the water reservoir and pipes appropriated. On account of this arrangement with Mrs. Stoneman the few remaining lots are worth from $50 to $100 more per acre, but will be sold at the old price. Ask F. K. Story, E. Pollard or Wallace & Sons, Alameda, if we have overstated the value of remaining lots. Those persons who have been hesitating to buy lots in this tract may do so no longer. The gentleman named as old successful fruit growers—have been through several water wars. By their co-operation and the wish on the part of Mrs. Stoneman to remove all differences that ever could arise about the ownership, control and distribution of water a mutual arrangement was made which will be binding on all subsequent purchasers can enjoy the results of their labor on their behalf. With all complications that might arise in the receipt and distribution of water eliminated, the few remaining lots are a great bargain. Let us show you these lots; they are very desirable.

REV. DR. LYRIC & CONGER, 30 Bryson-Bonabre Block, City, or 56 E. Colorado St., Pasadena, exclusive agents, will give you all the information desired if you will call upon them.

COL. D. K. ALLEN, whom we thought had traced to Guatemala the other day, must be still in Mexico, or at least his spirit is abroad in the land. The latest is a story from the City of Mexico. A small mountain, or high hill, about half way between the towns of Tenancingo and Tecualyac, without warning, exploded with a most terrific report, and immediately an immense volume of water commenced to flow from the newly-formed crater and inundated much of the surrounding country. The Indians fled to the hills, and church bells in the surrounding villages were rung violently. A general panic ensued. The water soon found its level and poured through a gorgo 150 feet deep. Further news of the great sputter is awaited with bated breath.

SAN FRANCISCO has been struggling for a year or more over a site for a post-office building, and now that one has been bought the people are less happy than they were before. The lot selected is on the corner of Mission and Seventy streets, southeast of the City Hall and about a block distant. It has a frontage of 325 feet on Mission by 350 feet on Seventh, and cost the Government $1,040,000. The Chronicle is very much dissatisfied with the selection. It declares that $500,000 would be a big price for the property; that the location is not suitable, being a mile from the center of business, and not central for the great majority of residences. It calls the selection an outrage on the people of San Francisco, and thinks the Senegambian in the wood pile is found in the fact that the place is accessible only by Senator Stanford's street railway lines. There is even an intimation that the half million or so over actual value which was paid, went to "grease the wheels."

The Business Pulse.

That a business revival is Los Angeles is now progressing is a fact that is obvious. The classified line advertising columns of The Times have come to be a very fair index of the state of business in many lines, especially in those of buying, selling, renting and exchanging of real estate and several other classes of property. In short, these line advertising columns have come to be the business pulse of the community to a great degree. In yesterday's issue The Times printed thirteen columns of shorts, sharp business announcements from five hundred different people.

A Hint to the Poets.

O poet of Autumn! sing me a song that is all reptile. With the noise of the great cane-grindings, and the trees that are dropping sweet, Leave the Autumn leaves to the spoiling of the Wintry wind and frost. And sing me the sugar-boiling, ere the juice of the cane is ripe.

Sing sweet—not of woods embalmed with banners of gold and green.

But the smoky homes where the maidens in dimples and dough are seen!

Where the great oxen logs are crackling, and the fire is a mighty glow;

And the Georgia polo-roasted in ashes as white as snow!

And sing me the candy pullings, where the heart of the young man speaks

And glows like the red that tingles on the fingers of the young girl.

And sing me the old grandmama, whose stories the children know—

Who died there by the fire and dreams of white as snow!

And sing me the candy pullings, where the heart of the young man speaks

And glows like the red that tingles on the fingers of the young girl.

And sing me the old grandmama, whose stories the children know—

Who died there by the fire and dreams of white as snow!

SPORTING NEWS.

Encouraging Outlook for the Coming Races.

The Prospects for the Great Free-for-all Trot.

A Chance for One of the Best Events Ever Run.

The Entries for the Los Angeles Derby—A List of the Entries—Good Game of Baseball Yesterday—Sporting Notes.

It is expected that definite news will be received today as to whether Los Angeles will get the great free-for-all trot between Wanda, Silas Skinner, Frank M and McKinney. A meeting of such celebrated performers over the Los Angeles track would be a great drawing card and would bring hundreds of visitors to the city. If it is a question of money the association, it is said, should not hesitate over a few hundred dollars. Such a race would give the association prestige and would undoubtedly pay handsomely. The speedy and consistent McKinney can be relied upon to uphold the prestige of Los Angeles, even against such star campaigners as Wanda, Silas Skinner and Frank M. It is not now certain whether Silas Skinner will come, as it is reported that he pulled up lame after his race on Saturday at San Francisco. The difference between the records of Wanda, Frank M. and McKinney is one-half second, and it is the opinion of horsemen that any one of the trio could go an exhibition mile over the kite-shaped track in 2:14 or better. Wanda and Frank M. have made 2:17 in a race over the regulation-shaped track.

The Los Angeles fair begins next Monday and the majority of the horses that will take part in the races will be at the track. At this writing it looks as if John Treat, Perrigrine, Gambo, Washington Bartlett, El Rayo and Gladiator will sport silk in the Southern California handicap on the opening day. This will be a slashing race and the record for the track at that distance is very likely to be lowered, as the course is in first class condition. The Los Angeles Derby has four entries, but Slinx is a doubtful starter. Request and Hockhocking Jr., are well matched and should make a hot race, while Queen Idia is the unknown quantity in the race.

There will be no trouble in arranging specials this year. At a rough estimate there will be fifteen trotters at the track that are not engaged. Their owners desire to put them in the list and are anxious to find a track.

Dr. Wise and L. J. Rose both own teams. They are two-year-olds and a special race has been arranged between them. Both sides of the house are confident. One of the fillies is destined to get a low mark, or accident, and the track record held by Sunol is very liable to be wiped out.

Leon and Dick Richmond came together in Los Angeles, at Hueneum Leon beat Dick Richmond, to the surprise and chagrin of the Los Angeles delegation. At Santa Ana Dick Richmond won after a hard tussle, reducing his record to 2:23 1/4. At San Diego Leon gained the day, trotting one heat in 2:23 1/4. The Los Angeles track is faster than either the Santa Ana or San Diego tracks, and one of these sons of Art. W. Brown is very liable to enter the 200 list. The betting public will have a chance to pick the winner. Dick Richmond is probably a little speedier than Leon, but he is not nearly such a good actor. Ventura county will be here, by the score to see Leon go against Dick Richmond.

BASEBALL.

The Seventh Regiment, after having reorganized their ball team, have now a team that can play ball. Yesterday the new team played their first game with the Athletics, resulting in a victory for the soldier boys.

The game was good from the beginning and showed good playing on the part of both teams. Thurman (Seventh Regiment) carried off the honors by making two handsome hits, both of which, with the help of an error, led him to the plate. Barclay also did himself proud on a long run backward and holding a high foul. The following is the score:

NOTES.

The Los Angeles Lacrosse Club is in practice three or four times a week for the great contest which is to come off between them and the Riverside Club in a few weeks.

The Los Angeles Athletic Club is getting ready for another field day, and as their new grounds will soon be ready, there should be an immense crowd present. The boys are in better shape now than ever before.

During the past week the gun clubs have had a fine time shooting quail. Saturday night every gun man in the city, who could get away, started for the mountains, where he spent yesterday, and took a gun to quail will be the order in more than one household.

For some reason he has not yet been accounted for, every pointer puppy whelped in this country during the past three months has died. They die without any apparent cause, and, as near as can be learned, no symptoms of any disease have been noticed. To all appearances a puppy is in perfect health, and the next hour he is dead.

The fight to a finish between Billy Manning and William Lewis in the rooms of the Pastime Athletic Club promises to be one of the best that has been witnessed in these parts for a long time past. Manning is a stayer and while he is getting too old for the ring his full of grit and will not give up as long as he can keep his legs under him. Lewis is a good man and will make a hard fight. They are about evenly matched and if Manning does not make the same mistake he made the last time he fought in this city, by training down too fine, it will be a long and hot battle.

THE NATIONAL GUARD.

Col. Schreiber Putting in Good Work—Improvement in the Drills.

News in National Guard circles has been very quiet during the past week, and outside of the court-martials to be held this week will be spent in instruction in the tactics, with a little of the new tactics which have been adopted, scattered here and there. Col. Schreiber is present at each company drill, and instructs the men personally for an hour each drill night. He has set apart the second Friday night of each month for non-commissioned officers. In this drill the officers, as well as the sergeants and corporals, are required to shoulder a gun and are drilled as a company for two hours. Some of the officers are not in love with this scheme of the Colonel's, but are reminded that if it does not suit them, their resignations will be accepted at general headquarters. The last drill shows a marked improvement over the two previous ones, and persons interested in military exhibitions will be handsomely entertained by visiting the Armory on their drill nights. The Colonel has also informed the non-commissioned officers that they will be required to attend school two or three times a month and those failing to show improvement will be reduced to the ranks.

Col. Schreiber has just returned from Washington, D. C., putting the boys together with the officers through Upton in a rigid style. During the week he will visit Anaheim and inform the boys of that company that they must be soldiers in reality as well as the city boys.

Co. B has elected a new set of officers who are in moral dread of the examination before the examining board.

This board consists of Col. Schreiber, who handles the tactical part of the examination; Lieut.-Col. Butler, who examines the "would-be's" in the manner of making out and forwarding communications and reports; and Maj. Wells, who finds out on short notice what knowledge the aspirants have in court-martials, martial law, etc. It is conceded that all officers who pass the board in the future will be a credit to any company.

During the week Capt. F. A. Martin of Co. C will uphold the dignity of the Seventh Regiment and will sit on a court-martial for the trial of Privates Mulrine, Madison and King of Co. C, and Privates Tufts, Bulpitt and Mulkey of Co. F.

The drum and bugle corps will entertain their friends in November with a social ball. The corps, although they make a great deal of noise and may be a source of annoyance to some people living near the Armory, need the support of the public—for what is a regiment without field music?

CANDIDATES FOR WHITTIER.

Another Consignment of Tough Youngsters from the North.

Superintendent J. P. Kincaid of the Industrial school of San Francisco arrived from the North by steamer and lodged in the city prison. Harriet Howes, Kate Eastman, Peter Mauldin and James Quinn. They were kept in the prison until the afternoon when they were taken to the Reform school at Whittier.

Mr. Kincaid had quite an adventure on his way down and lost one of the youngsters who started out with him.

The fourth boy, who is only 14 years of age, was committed in San Francisco on a charge of burglary, and is one of the hardest cases on the Coast.

When the young criminals were put aboard the steamer, they were handcuffed to each other and the officers did not free them until the steamer was over 100 yards from shore. As the young bandit found his bands freed, he made a rush for the rail and before the dozen or so men who were standing around knew what was up or could interfere he took a header and jumped a distance of thirty feet to the water.

FRESH LITERATURE.

BETTY A BUTTERFLY. By A. G. PLYMPTON, author of "Dear Dawgwater Dorothy," (Boston: Roberts Brothers). For sale by Stoll & Thayer, Los Angeles.

Who does not love childhood, with all its purity, and the charm of its unconscious sweetness and artlessness? There is nothing that so touches the heart of the time-worn and care-burdened man and woman as the guilelessness, the trust and gladness of the happy child. Through it we renew our own youth and look out upon the world with fresh courage and fresh trust.

It is a beautiful little life that is presented to the reader in the pages of the book before us. An honest, frank, gay and brilliant little soul is "Betty, a Butterly." We are in love with her at once—the happy little Quakeress, living like a butterfly in the great world of out-of-doors, with a soul as fresh as the flowers, and a heart as light as if it had wings. Speaking of an unknown uncle the child says, anxiously:

"Does thee not think that he would like me?"

"He would have little sense if lie did not," replied her companion, who had stopped painting and was watching her quite seriously notwithstanding that an occasional smile twinkled in the corners of his eyes.

"All that is the worst of it," cried the little girl. "I can't be sure that he has much sense. People say that he has not, which is rude and unkind when he is all the relation I have. They don't realize, I suppose, what it is to have but one. Why, I can't even say my prayers in the regular way, ending with 'Bless this one and that one,' but have to be satisfied with just 'Bless my poor uncle Richard, and make him amount to as much as these can.'"

The beauty of all this is that the child was unknowingly saying all this to this same uncle Richard who had just returned from abroad, and the book goes on to tell how he takes her home and makes life beautiful and glad for her. It is a story that all will love—a lovely picture of a sweet child and her numerous other admirable characters introduced.

THE ELECTRICAL BOY, or, the Career of Greatman and Greathearts. By John Thowbridge, Professor of Physics, Harvard University. (Boston: Robert's Brothers). For sale by Stoll and Thayer, Los Angeles.

This little volume is full of intense interest—a story for boys, that will tend to quicken all the better impulses of their hearts, and also to awaken their love for knowledge. It is full of incidents of experiments with that marvelous force which we call electricity, but of which we actually know so little, and the young reader's interest can but be enlisted in the experiments tried and the methods so fully described.

The plot of the story is introduced as a poor little wife whose home is a tenement house, surrounded by vice and poverty, with but one thing to brighten his life, the love of his gentle mother. But she slips from him into the silence of the grave and the boy is thrust out upon the great world, with no friend but a noble-hearted little newsboy a few years older than himself. The dangers, temptations and hardships of the street Arab's life are vividly described; he falls into the hands of thieves and criminals, but the boy keeps his white soul through it all, and finally he is rescued through the friendship of an old man whose life had been black with sin, but who loved the boy and who opened the door for his escape.

The life of the great West opens to them and we find them at last in the mining camp, and in the midst of attacks of Indians, where electricity is the agent that saves them. It is genuine boy's book, with enough of incident and exciting adventure to satisfy the most exacting boy in the country. It is a book that will be read.

Magazines.

The AREA for October will delight thoughtful, progressive and wide-awake people. The frontispiece is a portrait of James Russell Lowell, taken from the latest photographs of the great poet; it is by far the finest portrait yet published of Mr. Lowell and will be prized by thousands of his admirers.

George Steves, C. L. D., who contributed to the July issue, is similarly papered on Oliver Wendell Holmes' words, most ably and entertainingly of James Russell Lowell, this being the second of the Area series of papers on American poets.

Theodore Stanton contributes a paper of great interest on "Some Weak Spots in the French Republic." Hamlin Garland has a profusely illustrated paper on the artistic work of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Herne; he criticizes at length Mr. Herne's most notable plays, giving special attention to "Margaret Fleming" which created such a sensation in Boston last spring, and is booked for a return engagement in the Hub during October and November. Moncure D. Conway contributes an interesting paper on "Nimie, Blavatsky at Adyar." It has many other notable contributions, which cannot fail to interest the intelligent reader.

Literary Notes.

Ben Butler, in the chapter from his autobiography published in the October New England Magazine, is exceedingly frank about himself and his family. This makes us think that if every man in his everyday life was so candid and open as he tries to be in his autobiography, what a delightful world this would be to live in.

A. D. Mayo's article on "The Woman's Movement in the South," in the October New England Magazine, is exceedingly frank about himself and his family.

SCOVILLE PARK.

Attractive Improvements Going on in the Arroyo.

Two Night Hawks Who Wanted Alcohol.

And One of Them was Preacher Yates.

Some of the Religious Services Held Yesterday—Too Much Street Religion—Personal Notes and Brevities.

An attractive point for visitors and Pasadenaans, especially on Sunday, is the arroyo, west of Colorado street, where Mr. J. W. Scoville is carrying on such extensive operations in the way of transforming the bed of the arroyo and the steep slope to the westward into a mammoth park, which will be distinguished alike for its beauty, picturesqueness, and many other novel features.

Previous references to Mr. Scoville's extensive operations have been made in these columns. The two dams which he erected in the previous year, and which were then washed away by the winter floods, have been described at length. Now a third dam has been constructed to stem the flow of the arroyo water, while all about are being constructed such operations as are now hereabouts ever dreamed of.

The irrigation project continues to be discussed, and what is most likely to materialize just as yet, owing to the lateness of the season.

An exciting runaway occurred yesterday on East Colorado street, near Lamanda Park. The parties concerned were from Los Angeles and escaped serious injury.

John H. Walbridge of this place was granted a divorce from his wife by Judge Van Pelt on Saturday, and given the custody of his two children, Margaret and Benjamin Walbridge.

A. B. Manahan, W. E. Arthur, C. S. Martin, J. W. Wood, Judge Magee and P. M. Green are among the Pasadenaans who feature prominently on various materials of public importance.

Miss Neely Steens will undoubtedly be greeted by a large audience at the Tabernacle tomorrow evening. The concert will certainly prove one of the greatest musical treats Pasadenaans have ever enjoyed.

ise, this will be the gayest season Pasadena has ever known.

Who owns the streets? The Holliness Band did Saturday night.

Twelve to 1 o'clock is always a busy hour at the postoffice on Sunday.

A. H. Smith of San Diego called upon old friends in the city yesterday.

Fred Pringle came from Los Angeles yesterday and visited at Hotel Greco.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Hobart of Chicago are spending their honeymoon in Pasadena.

Pete Stell and party of two companions returned yesterday evening from Mt. Wilson.

Eastern travel on the overlands is very light at present. The west-bound trains carry all the passengers.

The members of the Nationalist Club had a meeting in the restaurant room in the Conservatory of Opera room.

R. L. Andrews of Albany, N. Y., was viewing Pasadena residence property Saturday, with the intention of purchasing.

Mrs. F. C. Monroe and daughter, who have spent the summer at Providence, R. I., are started on their homeward journey.

The new gymnasium proposed is referred to as being erected in front of the Athletic Club building on South Raymond avenue.

Judge Lynch has returned from Perris with a fine lot of quail as proof of his skill as a marksman. He reports the shooting first-class.

POMONA.

The Fight Over the Location of the Postoffice.

A History of the Controversy from the Beginning—Congressman Bowers Makes a Personal Inspection.

The TIMES conveys the news of the world to Pomona 30 miles in advance of the San Francisco papers. The Pomona branch office and agency is at Armour's Pharmacy, Second street, where advertisements for the paper and news items are received.

PREACHER YATES'S NIGHT WANDERINGS.

About 5 o'clock Sunday morning, W. W. Leithard, who is connected with J. W. Wood's drug store and who sleeps in a room above the store, was awakened by some one, calling from the street below. Mr. Leithard inquired what was wanted. The man, who was recognized, said that he wanted prescription filled. Mr. Leithard wanted to see the doctor at Washington that would settle the matter.

The above merely hints at what Mr. Scoville is doing and proposes to do. It is such enterprisers as this that go far toward adding to the town's attractions. When completed the park will be worth coming miles to see.

Mr. Leithard inquired what was wanted. The man, who was recognized, said that he wanted prescription filled. Mr. Leithard wanted to see the doctor at Washington that would settle the matter.

The man then intimated that it was alcohol he wanted or something like alcohol. He again grumbled and seemed about to strike him, but for the fact that the dog did not fall. He would doubtless have carried his threats into execution had the sound of the policemen approaching not frightened him and his preacher friend off. It is safe to say the offender will be arrested today on the charge of disturbing the peace. His name is withheld until the matter is thus made public.

As to Preacher Yates, it might be well for him to keep better hours and seek better companionship, or else stop preaching Pasadenaans no use for loud-mouthed hypocritical cranks.

PULITZ AND PEY.

Two services are held regularly every Sunday at the North Pasadena Methodist Episcopal Church. The evening service is preceded by a young people's meeting.

Rev. H. T. Staats preached the second of a series of sermons to young people yesterday at the North Pasadena Congregational Church.

Yesterday evening at the Universalist Church, Rev. Dr. Conger preached an interesting discourse on the subject of "Temperance."

Samuel Halm led the Y. M. C. A. meeting yesterday afternoon, which was largely attended as usual.

Elder B. F. Coulter of Los Angeles conducted the services at the Christian Church yesterday evening in the absence of the pastor. Rev. Mr. Givens will preach every evening during the week at the main street church in East Los Angeles.

A noticeable improvement has been made of late in several of the choirs of the leading churches. Music now constitutes an important feature of church worship and it is evident that our sister churches are making progress.

The Sunday afternoon services at the Church of the Angels, Garvanza, continue to be well attended by the Pasadenaans. No visitor should leave Pasadena before visiting this beautiful place of worship, which is well-nigh perfect in all its appointments.

A glance at the crowds going to and from church yesterday shows that Pasadena is well maintaining her reputation as a church-going community.

The painters are at work on Prof. T. S. C. Lowe's splendid new residence.

LAYING IT ON TOO THICK.

Waiving all questions as to the amount of good-will or the legality of the proceedings, it is safe to say that the street system of religion is being overdone in Pasadena. After the Salvation Army came the Holliness Band, and lastly but not least came Mr. Yates. The combination is sufficient to make the world wonder.

Saturday night, for instance, Evangelist Yates, getting in his work on one corner of the intersection of the two principal business streets of town, while opposite him, the Holliness Band, about twelve strong, were getting in their work by hymn singing. They were P. L. Abel, G. C. Clark, M. J. Moore, and son, members of the Los Angeles Wheelmen. They started at 8 o'clock for River-side, but on arriving here they concluded that they had enough of it for one day, and so, getting dinner, went to the Angels' bar. They made the rounds of 33 miles in four and a half hours, which is not bad time considering the roads and the fact that they were soft, this being their first outing for six months. Three others—George Crowder and Hall—started with them and came straight into Pomona about an hour later. They will take a later date for their trip to Riverside.

AN INSULTING BRUTE.

A strange man, carrying one arm in a sling, and wearing a dark coat and light trousers, made himself obnoxious on Saturday to a young lady living on the west side of town. He followed her for some time and endeavored to speak with her in a most disgraceful manner. The police are looking out for the offender and if he is caught, it will likely go hard with him.

BREVITIES.

Yesterday's overland arrived on time.

Overcoats and heavy fannels are in order.

Co. B will hold regular weekly drill to-night.

Humor reports several weddings to take place in the winter.

It is pretty nearly time for some railroad to apply for a franchise.

Stricter regulations are now in vogue with regard to moving houses over the city streets.

If all the predicted social events materialplause.

Mr. Roy appeared in burnt cork and costume and sang a guitar accompaniment "I'm going from de cotton fields," and for encore sang "The Yeller Rose in Texas."

Short brothers performed upon their guitars and harmonicas, and were compelled to respond to an encore. Dr. T. Hardy Smith's baritone solo, "What's in My Heart," was well executed. Mrs. Liscombe sang in costume "Always the same to your old wife." Jim and called for encore and demands. This was her first appearance before a Pomona audience. The exercises closed with a contralto solo, "The Day Is Done," by Miss Gertrude Newfer.

The concert was a success all around, and Mrs. H. M. James, who managed it, deserves great credit.

THE SUPREME COURT.

The October Term Will Begin This Afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The Supreme Court convenes in this city at 2 o'clock this afternoon for the October term, which will in all probability last for two weeks at least.

Though the calendar is not a particularly heavy one, about ninety cases in all, a number of questions of considerable interest will be submitted to the Court during that time. None, however, will be watched with more interest than that of the legality of the present San Francisco grand jury which will be presented in the habeas corpus case of Edgar Hammon.

Chief Justice Beatty and Justice de Haven are already located at the Westminster and the other justices, who came down by steamer, which mode of travel they preferred, according to the Examiner "because it would secure them against being interested."

There is a general demand that the county trials should be held outside of the city, and the question of whether or not to do so has been referred to the Board of Supervisors.

A party of Kansas City real-estate men arrived in the city in the near future. It is said that they are coming to look out for investments, in which case there is likely to be quite a spurt in real-estate circles.

There is a general demand that the county trials should be held outside of the city, and the question of whether or not to do so has been referred to the Board of Supervisors.

A large crowd visited Chinatown yesterday afternoon to witness the funeral services over a native girl. It was the second of the largest Chinese funerals ever held in the city, and every hawk in town was in service carrying the mourners to the cemetery.

Rev. Mr. Morrison of the Methodist Church of Santa Monica received a warm welcome when returning from his return from Europe. The church has presented him with a purse containing a substantial recognition of services performed, and the members of the church gave him another, besides filling his house with supplies for the winter.

At a bank at the Baldwin Saturday night a Mexican man was wounded, according to one of the men present. The thief was reported to Deputy Sheriff Charley Cruz, who caught the thief yesterday morning near Rosedale Cemetery, as he was on his way to the city, with the watch in his possession. The man's name is Francisco Teyas. He was born in the County of Jalisco.

A mining man who has just returned from the mining section around Acton in the northern part of the county states that there is much activity there at present. The Red Rover, owned by E. B. Miller of this city, one of the leaders in that vicinity, has such fine strength and can work at a depth of 400 feet, which has encouraged owners of adjacent mines. The State mineralogist, who lately visited this section, spoke very encouragingly of the future of the mines. Colorado experts have also been here of late. There is a first-class ten-stamp mill near the mines. All the supplies for this district are drawn from Los Angeles.

NEWS AND BUSINESS.

The Weather.

Call at Santa Fe ticket office, 129 North Spring street, for tickets, sleeping car berths and all information. Weekly excursions at lowest rates.

Hans W. Beatty, "the Poet," may be an interesting work, but the ordinary newspaper man wants only about five seconds with the poets—only just long enough to hide the remains of each poet before the next one comes in. And yet the victims of the poets are not the poets themselves, but the people who come to agricultural pursuits, and buy groceries only of W. Chamberlain & Co., 213 South Broadway—the ideal store!

At a bank at the Baldwin Saturday night a Mexican man was wounded, according to one of the men present. The thief was reported to Deputy Sheriff Charley Cruz, who caught the thief yesterday morning near Rosedale Cemetery, as he was on his way to the city, with the watch in his possession. The man's name is Francisco Teyas. He was born in the County of Jalisco.

A mining man who has just returned from the mining section around Acton in the northern part of the county states that there is much activity there at present. The Red Rover, owned by E. B. Miller of this city, one of the leaders in that vicinity, has such fine strength and can work at a depth of 400 feet, which has encouraged owners of adjacent mines.

The State mineralogist, who lately visited this section, spoke very encouragingly of the future of the mines. Colorado experts have also been here of late. There is a first-class ten-stamp mill near the mines. All the supplies for this district are drawn from Los Angeles.

A large crowd visited Chinatown yesterday afternoon to witness the funeral services over a native girl. It was the second of the largest Chinese funerals ever held in the city, and every hawk in town was in service carrying the mourners to the cemetery.
